

North Carolina and Kansas enacted two of the most important state tax reforms of the past decade. Lessons from both states should guide Congress over the next several weeks.

This panel explained what actually happened with taxes and spending in Kansas and North Carolina. The dual lessons illustrate the need for broad rate reductions and spending controls.

Charitable giving does not occur in a vacuum. While an individual's moral beliefs may motivate giving, the actual capacity for one to give is largely a function of income, expenses, and the perceived quality of the available charitable causes. States with higher taxes strongly correlate with less giving, while states with lower taxes tend to see higher rates of giving.

Wisconsin Approves 28th BBA-focused Article V Application –

It was four years in the making. It did not happen easily. Opponents repeatedly used scare tactics and misinformation. But on November 7 it didn't matter. A majority of Wisconsin Senators had studied Article V and become convinced it was the right tool to use to address pressing national fiscal and federalism issues.

= A The Wisconsin Assembly had approved two Article V-related resolutions and one related bill earlier in the year. Anti-Article V factions were bombarding Wisconsin legislators with demonstrations, e-mails and letters, so the Senate postponed acting while they studied the issues in more detail. Just before the vote Gov. Scott Walker tweeted that he supports the call for a convention.

During the 2½ hour televised November 7 debates on the measures, opponents drew on a litany of orchestrated reasons why an Article V convention was not safe ("it will runaway", "our Bill of Rights will be destroyed", "we don't know what the rules will be", etc.). A couple opposing Senators virtually shrieked their venomous uninformed disparagements.

Meanwhile Senators David Craig and Chris Kapenga responded to the outlandish criticisms with moderated voices on behalf of the majority. They talked about the devastating consequences of continued unsustainable patterns of federal deficit spending and national debt. Kapenga also referenced the broad public support for a balanced budget amendment. "People understand you can't run your household at a deficit forever," he said. Craig described the debt as the chief threat to national security.

When the votes were taken, all three measures were approved by a 19 to 14 margin. Assembly Joint Res 20 expressed support for a set of rules that require delegates to an Article V convention stick to the purpose for which the states called the convention. Assembly Joint Res 21 is the formal application from Wisconsin for a BBA-focused Article V convention, and Assembly Bill 165 established criteria for appointing delegates to an Article V convention.

With the action in Wisconsin, there are now 28 current live applications (out of the 34 needed) for a BBA-focused Article V convention.

Attorney and recognized authority on the Article V movement, David Guldenschuh, reacted to the passage of AJR 21 by saying, "Today, the Article V Balanced Budget Amendment movement took another major step toward restoring fiscal responsibility in our country and saving the American dream for our grandchildren."

Tim Dake, of the Wisconsin Grandsons of Liberty, stated, "It is extremely gratifying that our Wisconsin state legislature has recognized the fiscal irresponsibility of the federal government and has done their part to save our nation from imminent economic ruin. I strongly commend and thank those state legislators who voted in favor of the resolution for their leadership and their fortitude."

Press Coverage of Wisconsin's Action was Wide and Varied –

As was expected, Wisconsin publications immediately covered the Article V-related actions of the state's legislature. Groups that have organized to oppose Article V and a BBA are well-funded, and they have influenced many writers. In spite of the influence by those groups, most of the follow-up reports were objective and accurate.

Because Todd Richmond of the Associated Press covered the proceedings, newspapers as far away as Washington, DC, Miami, and San Francisco carried the story. Happily, Richmond's reporting was again objective and accurate. Typical of how these distant newspapers handled the AP report is this US News & World Report.

Even Esquire Magazine (an outrageously inaccurate piece) and the MSNBC Rachel Maddow Show weighed-in on the development in Wisconsin. While the Maddow report started out with reasonably accurate information, it immediately turned to statements like "most proponents are on the far-right fringe. The religious right movement, in particular, has pushed aggressively for a convention." Then it launched into quotes from so-called experts who warned a convention would be "putting the whole Constitution up for grabs."

BBA Endorsed by California Gov. Jerry Brown –

An article in The Washington Post, Democratic Governor Jerry Brown was quoted as saying "A constitutional convention to propose an amendment to balance the budget is unprecedented, but so is the political paralysis that prevents necessary action."

In the spirit of candor, readers should be aware that the Post's report was published on January 9, 1979. Brown's full-throated, unqualified endorsement of a state-led Article V convention leading to a federal BBA can be read HERE. At the time of Brown's remarks 22 states had adopted resolutions calling for a BBA-focused Article V convention. Today 28 state legislatures have done so.

While Brown's BBA endorsement is many years old, Democratic US Senator Joe Manchin (W.Va.) has also spoken out about the need for a federal BBA. The Martinsburg, WV Journal reports that at an October 27 community town hall Manchin told the audience that, "The country's biggest threat, is our own profligate spending... soon [to be] measured in 'trillions' rather than billions."

"We are going to add $666 billion more debt this year," Manchin said. "By 2027, we're predicting we will be $31 trillion in debt, if we don't change our ways."

Manchin reportedly suggested that America needs to enact a constitutional balanced budget Amendment to force the federal government to start balancing its own checkbook. "No matter what they (the federal government) want to do, at the end of the day we've got to make sure they balance the budget at the end of the year," Manchin said. Read the Journal report HERE.

Guldenschuh End-of-Year Report Tracks Article V Progress –

Throughout the last couple of years Georgia attorney David Guldenschuh has produced what he calls The Article V Convention Legislative Progress Report. With 2017 state legislative sessions now concluded, Guldenschuh has produced his preliminary end-of-the-year report.

This year he has tracked a total of about 180 pieces of Article V legislation in 40 states. His narrative report, available HERE, also offers his personal take on the recent Phoenix BBA Planning Convention. He also attached the report that he and the other two Georgia delegates to the Phoenix convention submitted to the Georgia legislature. It can be read HERE.

The chart version of the Guldenschuh report takes several factors into consideration and suggests that the BBA Task Force campaign with 28 state applications is now at 83% of its goal... and the Convention of States Project with its 12 state applications is at 47% of its goal. The chart, available HERE, also tracks the progress of five other Article V efforts.

Article V: 'Necessary' to Fix America's Problems = 2

On November 10 Townhall published an excellent column entitled A Convention of the States Is Necessary to Fix America's Most Difficult Problems. The author, Chris Talgo of The Heartland Institute, is a former U.S. History teacher.

After ticking off a list of federal problems Talgo says, “Career politicians have turned Washington, DC into a cesspool of corruption and malfeasance.” He goes on to point out “It is far-fetched to believe at this point Congress would ever propose an amendment to address the nation’s most vexing problems. Amendments that would require a balanced budget or institute term limits seem unlikely to originate from those who believe they would personally be harmed by such proposals. Hence, there is a great need for a convention of the states to propose such amendments.”

While most Americans support common-sense solutions such as a balanced budget amendment or term limits, Talgo warns, “[A] convention of the states has become a thorny topic due to a concerted misinformation campaign by those opposed to this process... As momentum toward a convention of the states increases, so does fearmongering against it.” Read the entire column HERE.

--- On November 6 The Heartland Institute issued a brief paper entitled “State Lawmakers Ready to Follow Up on Amendment Convention Meeting?”⁶ a quick overview of the Phoenix BBA Planning Convention by Michael McGrady. Read it HERE.

--- The November 28 edition of Investor’s Business Daily carried a thoughtful commentary by Linsdey Stroud, another Heartland Institute staffer. “How Millennials Can Help Reduce the Federal Deficit” opens with a 1936 quote by former president Herbert Hoover, “Blessed are the young, for they shall inherit the national debt." Read Ms. Stroud's article HERE.

--- On the occasion of the 250th anniversary of Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania, Karla Jones of The American Legislative Exchange Council published an excellent review of Professor Rob Natelson's five-part profile of the twelve anonymously-penned op-ed 'Letters' author, John Dickinson, one of federalism's early champions. Ms. Jones' review can be read HERE.

The Natelson series, first published by the Washington Post's blog, The Volokh Conspiracy, can be read HERE.

--- The Hill.com published a Natelson op-ed entitled "Let's not waste time reviving the zombie Equal Rights Amendment"... suggesting that those who want to focus on long-forgotten Constitutional amendment proposals could instead "campaign to complete ratification of James Madison's original first amendment, which Congress proposed in 1789 as part of the Bill of Rights. Although the requisite number of states have never approved it, unlike the ERA, the original first amendment has no ratification deadline." Read his op-ed HERE.

--- On November 28 Ballotpedia.com reported that during the Nov. 7 election voters (for the second time in a century) approved all 17 state constitutional amendments proposed to them on various state ballots... clear evidence that voters do not fear constitutional amendments. Read the report HERE.

--- Also on November 28 FreedomWorks issued an "Issue Analysis" on the need for a balanced budget amendment to the US Constitution to inject fiscal responsibility at the federal level. Sarah Anderson, author of the report, stressed that “At the state level, budgets are largely balanced across the board, in traditionally conservative and traditionally liberal states alike. According to the National Council of State Legislatures, forty-nine of the fifty states have effectively balanced budgets.”

She suggests that “The extent to which these statutory and constitutional provisions truly require that state governments not spend more than they bring in is debated. Even still, just states' efforts to do so go far beyond the federal government's disregard of its problematic patterns of excessive spending.”

Speaking on behalf of FreedomWorks, Ms. Anderson says, “We are supportive of the movement for a budget amendment, an ideal component of the larger fight to hold the federal government to fiscally sound, responsible practices.” Read her report HERE.

NY Rejects Convention to Amend State Constitution –

On Nov. 7 New York voters strongly rejected a measure which would have scheduled a 2019 convention to consider amendments to the NY state constitution. The question about holding an amendments convention is automatically put on the NY ballot every 20 years. The last convention was held in 1967.

A few days after the Nov. 7 election Nicole Gelinas of the New York Post wrote that the defeat was due to strong campaigning by government employee unions who were worried that state constitutional changes might imperil their constitutionally-guaranteed pensions.

"But", she says, "public-sector workers should worry less about words and more about numbers. Whenever anyone writes that public-sector pensions are unsustainable, New York union leaders have a rejoinder: The constitution guarantees them."

She pointed out that "An inflexible constitutional provision stands in the way of small changes that could prevent bigger disaster years or decades later. Government workers may feel more secure after last week's vote. But the constitution isn't made of money."

Read her piece HERE.

Article V Advocate Mark Levin to Host Show on Fox News –

The Federalist Papers Project has reported that popular radio talk show host Mark Levin will soon be hosting his own TV show on Fox News. "Life, Liberty & Levin" will begin in February, airing at 10 PM on Sunday nights.

= ALevin has been closely affiliated with the Convention of States Project (CoSP) since its beginning. It is believed that CoSP and other Article V efforts will receive more exposure as a result of Levin's new show. Read the Federalist story HERE.

CoSP has also released a new 5½ minute video about the proposed Constitutional amendments proposed by that group. The video features a brief address by former US Senator Jim DeMint and was produced in conjunction with Prager University. See it HERE.

A Final Point of Interest...

The idea that terms should be limited for members of the US Congress date back to 1777:

“...no person shall be capable of being delegate [member of Congress]
= Afor more than three years, in any term of six years...”

Ironically, these words appear in Article V of the Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union.
Today two groups (US Term Limits and the Convention of States Project) are seeking to use Article V of the 1787 Constitution to impose Congressional term limits.

Ending the Environmental Protection Agency's 'Endangerment Finding'

In recent months, President Donald Trump and his EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt have concluded that the threat of catastrophic climate change was grossly exaggerated by the Obama administration and announced the end of the "war on coal." Instead of federal actions designed to destroy America's coal industry and drive up Americans' energy bills, the Trump administration instead is pursuing a strong pro-energy, pro-environment, and pro-jobs agenda. This includes dramatic steps to reverse some of the costly existing environmental policies imposed by previous administrations. (Check out the Energy Freedom Score Card for specific examples.)

One major remaining hurdle in the way of fixing America's energy policies is the Obama-era "Endangerment Finding." Issued by the EPA in 2009, it claimed that human emissions of carbon dioxide, as well as methane leaks from natural gas production and pipelines, cause dangerous global warming and pose an imminent danger to the health and wellbeing of Americans. Science proves none of these claims, which is why the Endangerment Finding warrants reconsideration by the EPA.

A task force at this week's American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) Summit debated a resolution, drafted by The Heartland Institute, calling for a review of the Endangerment Finding. Heartland's discussions with state legislators, as well as a straw vote of elected officials and conservative think tanks, found a majority of them supported the effort. But after corporate ALEC members, led by ExxonMobil and the Edison Electric Institute (EEI), stacked the meeting room with lobbyists and their well-funded allies in support of the Endangerment Finding, Rep. Piscopo (R-CT) and Heartland Research Fellow Bette Grande agreed to withdraw the resolution and resume consideration next year. (Read the resolution to review the Endangerment Finding, the coalition letter in favor of the resolution, and the letter withdrawing the resolution.)

"This result is disappointing, but not surprising," said Heartland Institute President Dr. Tim Huelskamp, who served in the Kansas Senate for 14 years. "Big corporations like ExxonMobil and trade groups like EEI have long been members of the discredited and anti-energy global warming movement. They've put their profits and 'green' virtue signaling above sound science and the interests of their customers." While the final decision on the Endangerment Finding will be made by Administrator Pruitt, the effort would benefit greatly from support by the states.

Grande recently reexamined the endangerment finding and concluded it is "flawed." In a Heartland Policy Tip Sheet, Grande wrote EPA's evidence is not backed by science and real-world observations. "Estimates of climate sensitivity to increased concentrations of carbon dioxide appearing in the scientific literature since 2009 have fallen steadily below the estimates used by EPA," Grande wrote.

Grande says policymakers should urge EPA to "reopen and review" the endangerment finding, and Congress should "pass legislation banning the regulation and taxation of carbon dioxide," which Grande says is "against the public good." Grande's conclusion are backed by earlier studies from The Cato Institute documenting that the EPA "refused to consider or ignored significant refereed science" and the The Heritage Foundation highlighting the excessive, massive cost borne by small businesses.

Trump Administration Reverses Obama-Era Drilling Restrictions

In this story published by Environment & Climate News, H. Sterling Burnett, a senior fellow in environment and climate, reports the Department of the Interior (DOI) announced it plans to rescind a policy implemented under former President Barack Obama that placed large areas of public lands off limits for consideration of oil and gas leasing and development. DOI's policy shift was made in an effort to comply with President Donald Trump's executive order "Promoting Energy Independence and Economic Growth." Among the recommendations made in DOI's 44-page report, DOI proposes eliminating Obama-era mandates designed to prevent oil and natural gas development near areas the federal government says have high natural and cultural resource value. DOI announced it will end the policy by 2018 and will instead use individual resource management plans to guide where energy development will be permitted on public lands. Read more

Attached is a good Townhall article from a conservative (former law school Federalist Society chair) on why it makes sense to consider the National Popular Vote Compact.

As a former member of the California legislature and former National Chairman of ALEC, I've had an opportunity to discuss this issue with many of you. I just wanted to share this article for your consideration. Please feel free to email or call me with any comments and questions you may have. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Surprisingly, Republicans and Conservatives Shouldn't Fear a National Popular Vote

By Rachel Alexander

Townhall

December 11, 2017

Republicans are hesitant to switch from our winner-take-all state laws allocating electors to the electoral college to using the National Popular Vote. The National Popular Vote Plan would award all of a state's electors to the candidate who wins the most popular votes in all 50 states. There is a fear that such a move will benefit Democrats, since Democrats won the popular vote even though they lost the elections in 2000 and 2016. But the truth is, Republicans are likely going to lose their ability to win the necessary swing state of Florida in the future, and they can win the popular vote by campaigning differently.

The demographics of Florida are changing. More and more illegal immigrants are entering the country. Additionally, Puerto Ricans are flooding the country due to economic chaos and humanitarian crisis following Hurricane Maria at home. When they enter the U.S., because they are American citizens they can vote, and they vote overwhelmingly Democrat. Hillary Clinton had an almost three-to-one edge among Puerto Ricans in Florida last year. Both illegal immigrants and legal Puerto Ricans are counted in the census which is used for determining how many congressional seats and electoral votes Florida receives. This will soon result in an increase in Florida's electoral votes, which will lean more Democratic as increasing numbers of Puerto Ricans vote (this doesn't even take into consideration possible illegal immigrant voter fraud).

It is true that Democrats Al Gore and Hillary Clinton won the popular vote but lost the election. But those weren't true popular vote elections. The Republican candidates they lost to put all their efforts into a handful of swing states, and did a better job campaigning there than the Democrats. In contrast, Clinton's campaign unwisely campaigned in non-swing states such as Arizona, while ignoring the swing state of Wisconsin. If there was a true popular vote election, the Republican candidates would run a completely different type of campaign, likely focusing on mobilizing their base in rural areas and red states. Regardless, Republicans still won the popular vote in 2004.

A presidential election using the National Popular Vote is not a radical proposal. Critics contend there would need to be a constitutional convention to amend the Constitution in order to change the state-based, winner-take-all rule that most states use to send their electors to the electoral college. This isn't necessary. The electoral college can remain. All the Constitution says about electing the president is in Article II, "Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors...." In order to change the system, individual states would merely need to revise state law to send their electors based on the National Popular Vote for the presidential candidates instead of winner-take-all. Currently, all states but two,

Maine and Nebraska, have winner-take-all systems to send their electors to the electoral college.

Critics also claim that using the National Popular Vote in presidential elections would favor big cities over rural areas. This isn't correct. Only one-sixth of Americans live in the 100 biggest cities. In contrast, in the current unfair winner-take-all system, only a handful of states decide presidential elections, the swing states. The 10 most rural states aren't included, nor are 12 of the 13 smallest states. The winner-take-all system does not represent the vast majority of Americans. By the time voting results come in from key swing states, many voters on the West coast don't bother voting because their votes essentially don't count. This hurts minor candidates on the ballot in those states.

Under the current system, presidents shower pork on the swing states in order to get their votes. During the 2004 election, President Bush advocated for and got a trillion dollar expansion of Medicare in order to entice votes from the large population of senior citizens in Florida. Presidents take steps to help the coal industry in order to influence Pennsylvania, and the ethanol industry to help Iowa. Battleground states are twice as likely to receive exemptions from No Child Left Behind as fly-over states and twice as likely to have natural disasters declared.

There is another criticism that a rogue state secretary of state could frustrate the National Popular Vote Compact by refusing to certify the results. This is invalid, since plenty of federal and state laws prohibit that elected official from doing so.

Voter fraud will become more difficult under a National Popular Vote, because crooked party operatives will no longer be able to focus their efforts on just a handful of states, and the windfall of electoral votes for their illicit efforts will be smaller. For the same reason, it also reduces the possibility of recounts.

What did the Founding Fathers prefer? Not winner-take-all. The Founders debated various methods of the electoral college and almost adopted the proportional system at the Constitutional Convention. They never debated a winner-take-all system. As the states began to adopt winner-take-all, in order to ensure that their favorite sons like Thomas Jefferson won, Missouri Senator Thomas Hart Benton warned in an

1824 Senate speech, "The general ticket system [winner-take-all], now existing in 10 States was ... not [the offspring] of any disposition to give fair play to the will of the people. It was adopted by the leading men of those states, to enable them to consolidate the vote of the State."

There are a significant number of prominent conservatives who understand what is taking place demographically so they support direct presidential elections. They include former congressmen Tom Tancredo (R-CO), Bob Barr (R-GA), former House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-GA) and eight former national chairs of the conservative American Legislative Exchange Council.

So far, 11 states have passed laws implementing the National Popular Vote Compact, and it has passed in at least one chamber of 12 other state legislatures, four of which are red states. It will go into effect when enough states have passed it to total 270 electoral votes. When polled (by a left-leaning polling company), 74 percent of Americans support direct presidential elections. This breaks down to 75 percent among Republicans and 78 percent among Democrats. The left naively thinks direct presidential elections will benefit Democrats, assuming that large urban areas will decide elections. This bipartisan support means there is a good chance it will happen.

The purpose of the National Popular Vote bill is to make every voter in every state politically relevant in every presidential election. This is the only way to right size the political influence of battleground states. Clinging to the winner-take-all system is a losing strategy for Republicans. Under that system, they will likely lose Florida by 2020 or 2024 due to demographical changes. It is better to take our chances with a direct presidential election than suffer certain defeat with the unfair, outdated, flawed current system that can and should be reformed.

State Fiscal Reform Rolls Out Unaccountable and Unaffordable 2017

The latest estimate places unfunded public pension liabilities over $6 trillion. Absent significant reforms, unfunded liabilities of state-administered pension plans will continue to grow and threaten the financial security of retirees and taxpayers alike. The resulting fiscal calamity could be far deeper than the Great Recession.

Dear Speaker Pro Tempore Schuring,

As Chairman of We Are Ohio, I am writing to ask you not to sign on as a co-sponsor to Representative John Becker's anti-worker legislation and to oppose Rep. Becker's efforts to hurt working families in your district and across Ohio.

Rep. Becker, we believe, is pursuing an anti-worker agenda pushed by out-of-state interests like the Koch brothers, Americans for Prosperity and the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC).

He has outlined six separate constitutional amendments that are all designed to hurt workers, lower wages, decrease safety in the workplace and cause further economic insecurity for the people that you serve.

= 9On behalf of We Are Ohio, I'm asking you to stand for workers in your district and our state and to stand against these out-of-state parties. I'm sure you would agree that Ohio elected officials should represent the people of Ohio, not out of state interests.

We Are Ohio was formed in 2011 when a similar threat to workers' security was passed by the Ohio General Assembly and signed into law by Governor Kasich. We asked the citizens to veto Senate Bill 5 that year and restore collective bargaining rights to public sector employees, and they responded with historic numbers.

Nearly 1.3 million Ohioans signed petitions to put the citizens veto on the ballot, 17,000 Ohioans volunteered for the campaign and, on Election Day, 2.1 million Ohioans voted to veto Senate Bill 5 by a 62-38 margin.

We Are Ohio has remained a force since then. We have held meetings all across the state, have a huge online presence and maintain a database and email list of nearly 1 million voters who agreed with us in 2011.

We believe that the prudent course here is for the legislature to steer away from any anti-worker laws, amendments or ballot initiatives and we ask for your support.

Governor Kasich has acknowledged that such legislation does not attract business to our great state.

I'm respectfully asking you to tell Representative Becker that his ideas are harmful and divisive and that we don't want history to repeat itself.

Sincerely,

Dear Members,

Without a doubt, 2017 has been a great year for free market policy and for ALEC. Fiscally responsible, free market victories across the states will continue to grow a healthy economy and protect hardworking taxpayers. From right to work in Kentucky and Missouri to pension reform in Pennsylvania, ALEC members are paving the way for more freedom and prosperity in the 50 states. By engaging ALEC alumni in congress with a clear federalism message, ALEC members raised their voice in favor of eliminating the State and Local Tax Deduction and joined the advisory council of the House Bipartisan Task Force on Intergovernmental Affairs to advance the roll of states in national policy.

Under the leadership of 2017 chairman Indiana Senator Jim Buck, ALEC welcomed record numbers of participants to both the Denver Annual Meeting and the States and Nation Policy Summit held two weeks ago in Nashville. Over the year, we hosted state legislators with innovative policy solutions; cabinet secretaries, governors and members of congress and leaders in media, business and research. At nine academies, legislators focused in on issues including fiscal policy, healthcare and energy innovation, and education funding. And, this ALEC policy leadership drove more interest and participation in our exchange. This year we welcomed 315 new legislators and 36 new private sector members.

ALEC has winning ideas because they come from you. In 2017, the Homeland Security working group became a task force and members started a rural caucus with the intention of growing it into a major ALEC program. With 2018 and the mid-term election on the horizon, look to ALEC for innovative policy solutions and partnership with leading researchers and industry experts.

On January 1, 2018, ALEC will begin its 45th Anniversary Celebration with new leadership from 2018 chairman North Carolina Representative Jason Saine. As you read this, think back on how ALEC has made an impact on you personally. What can you do to help commemorate ALEC in your state or to help grow the organization, so it remains strong for generations to come.

Now is the time to bring your colleagues and counterparts into the ALEC family. ALEC is where the action is; where debate happens, and where ideas are tested. As proven by Rich States, Poor States — now in its 10th edition — and so many other ALEC studies, states with sound free market policies have the winning recipe for growth and opportunity... Just look at Indiana and North Carolina, the homes of our 2017 and 2018 chairman.

Please share this message with your friends. We want more legislator and private sector partners to contribute to and benefit from the robust exchange at ALEC. Linked below are highlights from the year to help you tell your ALEC story.

Happy holidays and here's to a great 2018.

Sincerely,

The $6 Trillion Albatross Around States' Necks

America's many public pension problems are well known to those involved in public policy, but the issues might be even worse than previously believed. Researchers at the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) report in a new study, titled Unaccountable and Unaffordable 2017, unfunded public pension liabilities (the amount of present liabilities that exceeds current assets) total more than $6 trillion across the 50 states. That amounts to $18,676 for each U.S. resident. This is due to many factors, including low contribution rates, overly generous benefits, automatic cost of living adjustments (COLAs), unrealistic assumed return rates, and states borrowing too much money to cover other expenditures. The ALEC study examines more than 280 state-administered public pension plans and reports each state's unfunded pension liabilities using a realistic assumed rate of return of 2.142 percent on investments—instead of the 7.34 unweighted rate averaged from states' current plans. Three metrics used to judge the health of states' pension systems are highlighted: total unfunded liability, unfunded liabilities per capita, and the funding ratio—the most important measure.

According to ALEC, with a funding ratio of 61.5 percent, Wisconsin has the best managed pension system. Second in line is South Dakota, at 48.1 percent. The researchers attribute Wisconsin's relatively high funding ratio to the state's hybrid pension model, which includes elements of both a traditional defined-benefit plan and a defined-contribution model. Retirement plans in the private sector are usually defined-contribution plans, such as a 401(k) or 403(b), which rely heavily on stock market performance and other financial instruments.

The three least-funded states in the study are Illinois (23.3 percent), Kentucky (20.9 percent), and Connecticut (19.7 percent). Each of these states experienced a dip in their funding ratios compared to 2016. Connecticut's dead-last ranking is not surprising. It is "one of four states to set retiree benefits through collective bargaining and is unique in that the legislature does not have to consent to contracts for them to go into effect." The state also uses an assumed rate of return of 8 percent, which paints an extremely unrealistic picture of the pension system's financial solvency.

Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin (R) has expressed interest in ending the use of defined-benefit pensions in his state. He would replace them with 401(k)-like plans for new public employees and current ones who choose to transfer their old pensions. Bevin has also proposed lowering the assumed return rate, which is currently 6.75 percent. Low investment returns, COLAs, and state contribution shortfalls primarily led to Kentucky's pension crisis. The pension problems were partially addressed by the state's 2013 bi-partisan reforms, which the Bluegrass State is likely to consider reforming again in 2018.

Illinois is the third-least-funded state and has the third-largest unfunded liability debt, which now totals $388.342 billion, according to ALEC's calculations. A bill has been proposed in Illinois to create a defined-contribution retirement plan for new state employees hired after June 30, 2018, and current employees who wish to move their pensions into the new model. An opinion poll of Illinoisans shows 78 percent of respondents favor letting current state workers enroll in a 401(k)-style plan and 60 percent favor requiring new state workers to enroll in a 401(k)-style plan.

In a Research & Commentary, Heartland Senior Policy Analyst Matthew Glans explains why states must begin to make drastic changes to their public pension liabilities and not wait until it's far too late to address pension problems. "Kicking the public-pension can down the road would only serve to delay the problem, and increasing taxes and ignoring the core problems created by defined-benefit systems would only ensure the pension system will never become solvent. Comprehensive reforms that allow governments to better manage employee retirement costs are desperately needed, both in Illinois and across the country," Glans wrote.

What We're Working On

Energy & Environment

Nebraska Approves Last Segment of Keystone XL Pipeline

In this article for Environment & Climate News, H. Sterling Burnett, Heartland's senior fellow on environmental policy issues, writes about the Nebraska Public Service Commission's (NPSC) approval of the final segment of the $8 billion Keystone XL Pipeline. With NPSC's 3–2 decision, the Keystone XL Pipeline cleared its final regulatory hurdle after an arduous nine-year struggle. Despite the fact the permits have been granted, questions remain about whether the final segment of Keystone XL will be completed. For much of the time the pipeline was under consideration, oil prices exceeded $100 per barrel. With oil now hovering around $50 per barrel, it is unclear whether the pipeline still makes economic sense.

Education

Chronic Public School Teacher Absenteeism Underscores Need for School Choice Options

In this Research & Commentary, Policy Analyst Tim Benson writes about a new Fordham Institute report that found one out of every four teachers (28.3 percent) at traditional public schools across the United States are "chronically absent," meaning they are out of the classroom for sick or personal leave at least 10 days in a typical 180-day school year. In Florida, more than 40 percent of traditional public school teachers are chronically absent. Even worse, more than 50 percent of Nevada traditional public school teachers and a staggering 79 percent of Hawaii traditional public school teachers are chronically absent.

Health Care

Research & Commentary: Arizona Seeks Medicaid Waiver to Install Work Requirements

In this Research & Commentary, Senior Policy Analyst Matthew Glans examines Arizona's effort to use Medicaid waivers to add work requirements and time limits to its Medicaid program. "Implementing Medicaid work requirements would be a good first step for Medicaid-expansion and non-expansion states toward helping to limit the rising costs of Medicaid," Glans wrote.

Budget & Tax

Research & Commentary: Iowa Needs Pension Reform

POLICY NEWSPAPER

In this Research & Commentary, Senior Policy Analyst Matthew Glans examines the need for comprehensive pension reform in Iowa. "Hybrid [pension] models do not eliminate all the problems of defined-benefit plans, but they do limit the rapid growth of liabilities in the future. Iowa policymakers should consider using hybrid plans as a viable model for reforming state workers' pensions," wrote Glans.

From Our Free-Market Friends

Free Speech on Alabama Campuses

In "Free Speech on Campus in Alabama," the Alabama Policy Institute (API) explores problems and solutions related to free speech on college campuses located in the state. Fourteen colleges and universities in Alabama were either given a "red light" or "yellow light" rating from the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education (FIRE) for having policies that prohibit speech. None were given a green light. The difference between "red light" and "yellow light" schools is that red light colleges apply more severe and broader restrictions on speech. API recommends university administrations explicitly state their support for freedom of speech on campuses, and it calls for state legislators to pass legislation safeguarding First Amendment rights for all college students.

In the January issue of School Reform News, Jenni White reports on the continue widespread use of Common Core State Standards (CCSS) despite public resistance. Activists and analysts say replacement standards have been nothing more than a rebrand of Common Core. An Abt Associates study analyzing nine CCSS revisions confirms nine states kept their standards intact.

Now is the Time For Legislators to Change Their Budgeting Process

Bob Williams | Huffington Post

Addressing the broken budget process requires fundamental reforms that will certainly impact popular spending areas such as education, Medicaid, and state employee salaries and benefits—including pensions. Legislators can use this current budget shortfall crisis as an opportunity to transform their state budget process to an outcome, performance-based budgeting system. Both taxpayers and recipients of government services will benefit from the result.

From the Desk of Jonathan Williams

State leaders across our nation are commending Congress and President Trump for passing the first major federal tax reform in 31 years and delivering real relief to American taxpayers. Hardworking American families and businesses will now keep more of their own money and the economy will continue to benefit from new investment, job creation and higher wages.

There are complexities that will arise across the states depending on how each state tax code is linked to the federal code. However, this also presents an ideal opportunity to address state level tax reform needs. Roughly half of the states that tax personal income automatically adopt changes to the federal tax code as they are enacted, and the other half generally require deliberative legislative action to adopt federal changes.

We have already seen several governors and leaders address the need for state tax reform this week. For instance, Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds discussed the importance of tackling tax reform so Iowans don't end up actually paying more in state taxes. We expect state reactions to federal tax reform will continue to be a major point of discussion as state legislative sessions ramp up in the coming weeks. I have included a Facebook Live video below where our team discusses how states are reacting to the federal tax changes.

Please don't hesitate to reach out to us whenever the Center for State Fiscal Reform can be helpful during this exciting time for state tax reform.

All the best,

Jonathan Williams

Communications and Technology Update:
January 19, 2018

Facebook

Twitter

Dear Members of the Communications and Technology Task Force and Friends,

= AI trust you all had a great holiday season and that you are ready for the 2018 legislative session. From what I can tell, the legislative session already looks interesting. A number of legislators have proposed laws impacting everything from Unmanned Aerial Vehicles and Unmanned Aerial Systems (UAVs/UASs, colloquially, “drones”), to autonomous vehicles, to Internet Service Providers, and so much more.

For state legislators who want to get more involved with communications issues, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) issued a Public Notice expanding the Intragovernmental Affairs Committee. The IAC is a mix of state and local elected officials, think tank scholars, and more. If you would are interested, or would like to apply, please (1) follow this link which provides the information on how to apply, and (2) send me a note at jhauenschild@alec.org. I can help you through the application process and provide advice.

Speaking of the FCC, during the December 14, 2017 open meeting, the Commissioners voted to finalize the Restoring Internet Freedom Order. The RIF repeals the decision by the Obama Administration to apply heavy-handed, outdated telephone regulations to internet service providers. Shortly after the decision, at least one broadband service provider announced it would invest billions of dollars in infrastructure deployment—billions beyond what was already committed to through the next several years. I have included some resources for you in this email, if you would like to learn more about the FCC's efforts.

Finally, make sure to mark your calendar for Friday, April 27th and the Spring Task Force Summit in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Registration for the will open at the end of the month.

If you have any questions, or any ideas for future newsletters or conference calls, please send me an email at the address listed above.

Regards,

Jonathon Paul Hauenschild, J.D.

What I Am Writing

- With the legislative sessions in full swing, a number of states have proposed legislation and finalized regulations impacting drone operations in their states. Find summaries of the proposals, and links, in this article.

- A bipartisan group of U.S. Senators recognize the cybersecurity risk posed by an aging election infrastructure. They have proposed legislation to help states modernize their systems and put strong(er) standards in place to avoid election interference from bad actors or foreign states.

- Last month, the FCC voted to "Restore Internet Freedom." The vote overturned the Obama-era FCC's decision to impose heavy-handed, 1930s era telephone regulations on broadband service providers. The FCC's decision to reverse these anachronistic regulations should help spur investment and infrastructure deployment.

What I Am Reading

- = 9 Apple announced plans to invest $350 billion in the U.S. economy over the next 5 years. Of the $350 billion, roughly $75 billion will be in the form of investments in American manufacturing and a record, repatriation tax it will pay bringing earnings from overseas into the country. It will also spend billions hiring new workers, investing in future jobs, and building data centers.
 - 21 states files suit to re-impose Title II on broadband service providers. Attorneys general from 21 states? 4mostly blue states—files suit against the FCC and Trump administration to strike down the Restoring Internet Freedom Order, seeking to re-impose Obama-era FCC's 2015 order.
 - China has a unique, ongoing social experiment. The country has launched a program called Zhima Credit. Zhima Credit tracks a person's "social credit," or the score assigned to a person for conduct deemed to be positive and beneficial or, conversely, negative and harmful.

FCC RIF Resources

- If you would like to read the text of the order and the accompanying one-page fact sheet, this link will lead you there.

Convention of States Update

Nashville Hosted a Convention of the States in June 1850 and ALEC in December 2017

Karla Jones | Federalism and International Relations Task Force

Federalism took center stage at the most recent States and Nation Policy Summit in Nashville, Tennessee, December 6-8, 2017. Here are some of the highlights:

- Former Virginia Attorney General Ken Cuccinelli addressed the importance of a balanced budget amendment to America's fiscal sustainability at a conference-wide breakfast session. A workshop giving lawmakers the tools to implement Cuccinelli's ideas using Article V of the U.S. Constitution followed the breakfast.

- The Federalism Task Force was treated to a presentation from the Chair of last September's Phoenix Planning Convention to consider potential rules for an Article V amendments convention.
- The Task Force heard a presentation on the challenges that overregulation poses to the states, and model policy supporting the REINS Act was considered and adopted.
- The Federalism Task Force also considered and adopted model policy calling for a repeal of the 17th Amendment. The Federalism Task Force will meet again in August 2018 in New Orleans

NAFTA Has Been a Winner for the States

Karla Jones | Federalism and International Relations Task Force

Despite its imperfections, the states have been notable NAFTA beneficiaries and have the most to lose if the Agreement falters. A recently published report stated that Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio and Indiana would be among the top 10 losers if NAFTA is dissolved. Millions of American jobs are supported by NAFTA, and all but one U.S. state count Canada or Mexico as a top three trading partner. While ready for modernization, NAFTA has been good for the nation and good for the states.

Democracy's Tenuous Hold in Turkey

Caroline Caywood | Federalism and International Relations Task Force

Turkey has become a disappointing example of a nation that once held so much democratic promise but where the institutions underpinning rule of law seem to be faltering in dramatic fashion. Late last year, Turkey's Chief Prosecutor issued a warrant for former CIA officer, Graham Fuller, alleging links between Fuller and Muslim cleric Fethullah Gulen, marking the latest chapter of the disintegration of liberal democracy in a nation that just a few years ago appeared to be a democratic success story. The latest series of threats to Turkish democracy have come about under the presidency of Recep Tayyip Erdogan, who has consolidated power into what is becoming an increasingly authoritarian regime.

Dear Members,

Forty-five years ago, a group of state leaders came together to form the American Legislative Exchange Council--people like Lew Uhler, Lou Barnett, Mark Rhoads, Henry Hyde, Terry Branstad and John Engler. They knew then, as we know now, that legislators and members of the private sector working together can have a more meaningful impact and create more opportunity for Americans than the government can working alone. They understood that a grassroots network of liberty-minded advocates was fundamental to spreading good ideas, but they likely had no idea how important ALEC would become.

For forty-five years, ALEC has been ahead of the curve on tax and fiscal policy, lawsuit reform, education choice, criminal justice and so many other issues fundamental to the American way of life. And, because of our focus on federalism rather than one-size-fits-all policy, ALEC has been able to put forth winning ideas—ideas that were more deeply vetted and more consistent with the will of the people.

Over the past year, the federal government has taken great steps to return power to the states. Through landmark tax reform and rule making designed to reduce the size of the federal government, our national leaders have signalled that now is the time for states to lead.

Just last night, the President offered a vision of a government that works hard to protect taxpayers and focuses on economic security for the middle class. Over the past year, that vision has become a reality with an $8 trillion increase in the stock market, 2.4 million new jobs, a record low for unemployment and businesses reinvesting in the states.

The past two months of bonus and compensation announcements across the American business landscape confirm to the American people what we already know: sound policy that unburdens American entrepreneurs and businesses yields a positive outcome for all Americans.

So as the 2018 legislative session heats up in your states, remember the ALEC mission and vision in all that you do. Limited government, free markets and federalism are a winning recipe for growth and opportunity.

I hope you will join me in celebrating the ALEC 45th Anniversary both in Washington, DC on September 26, and in your state.

Together, we can ensure ALEC continues it's ascendent path for another 45 years.

Sincerely,
Lisa B. Nelson

Book Debunks ‘We Don’t Know How Conventions Work’ Claim –

A new book has just been released that sheds much needed light on the forgotten history of an American tradition: conventions of the states. It is a must-read for legislators (state and federal) and by citizen activists who care about correcting the shortcomings of the federal government.

The book, by retired business executive Michael Kapic, is titled “Conventions That Made America... A Brief History of Consensus Building”. The 105-page book covers notable government-related conventions over the past 3+ centuries. It is intended to be used by decision-makers and legislators with little reading time.

Mike says “[T]he founders gifted us with a way to solve today’s problems when they installed Article V in the Constitution. But they also assumed we'd still be using the vehicle of that era to implement it. The problem is that most American's today don't know the long and storied history of our American problem-solving process."

He notes that "The tales of our conventions is not well known outside of the historical and scholarly community and not readily reachable or easily readable by the public. That has resulted in patriots who recognize the country's dilemma, but don't understand that the method for fixing it has been used many times in our history."

Michael Farris, co-founder of the Convention of States Project says, "This book is compiled from scholars and organizations original sources and shows the administration of the more notable conventions. It attests to the validity of a tried, workable, and safe method for the people and their states to safe-guard their Constitutional government.? D

Arizona State Representative Anthony Kern says, "Historical and informative, this book removes any doubt, fear, or confusion regarding the need to call for an Article V Convention."

"Mike Kapic's book thwarts one of the primary arguments against calling a convention: that we don't know the rules and the process is uncertain," says author and Constitutional lawyer Dustin Romney. "It demonstrates that we know the general rules and we know the process."

Lauding the new book, Arizona State Representative and Majority Whip Kelly Townsend says, “One of our top priorities is educating the public, as well as government officials, about previous conventions that have taken place.”

This timely presentation allows the reader to quickly review America’s history of solving problems that federal legislatures and politicians could not. This is the history of the origins of Article V and how the states can repair what= 2s broken in DC. The author noted that, “It is time to bring back this genuine, proven, and safe American tradition so the people and their states can take control of their government again.”

The book is available in print and for Kindle from Hunt for Liberty by clicking HERE.

Numerous Writers Express Support for a Constitutional BBA –

Under the headline “Balanced Budget Amendment Needed Now”, respected syndicated columnist George Will makes a strong case that a Constitutionally-mandated federal fiscal restraint is critical.

He says, “The federal debt held by the public was 39 percent of GDP 10 years ago; it is 75 percent today. Before last month's tax changes, the debt was projected to reach 91 percent in 10 years. No one knows if the tax changes will hasten this; no one should assume that they will not. No one knows at what percentage the debt's deleterious effect on economic growth becomes severe; no sensible person doubts that there is such a point.”

His column was initially carried in the Washington Post, and was re-published in the Albany (NY) Democrat-Herald, The Mercury News (San Jose, CA), SouthCoast Today, (New Bedford, MA), The News-Banner (Bluffton, Indiana), and the Denver Post. The entire column can be read HERE.

The January 11 edition of National Review carried a recent speech by Christopher C. DeMuth, former president of the American Enterprise Institute. DeMuth focused on the need for a balanced budget amendment.

He said, "For most of American history — from 1789 through the late 1960s — we did adhere to a balanced-budget rule through broad, bipartisan consensus. Regular government operations were held to a balanced budget; borrowing was limited to wars, other emergencies, and investments such as territorial expansion and transportation; and incurred debts were paid down diligently."

"But our now-gargantuan public debt is largely the result of routine borrowing for current consumption. This is certainly unsustainable and likely to lead to serious grief before long. But it is also a big problem right now. It is corrupting the relationship between citizen and government, and it is leaving us poorly prepared to respond to big emergencies when they arrive, as inevitably they will. American politics is at its best when responding to big, ambitious, unifying challenges. I conceive of a campaign for a balanced-budget amendment as such a project — focused on public education about the perils of our current practices, and calling for a secular reawakening. ↗ 0

Read DeMuth's entire speech HERE.

Heartland Institute's staffer Jesse Hathaway wrote an op-ed piece for DailyCaller.com entitled "Here's How State Legislators Can FINALLY Fix the National Debt In 2018".

His prescription? "This would best be accomplished with the passage of a state-led federal balanced budget amendment."

Hathaway points out, = 2*Although Congress seems content to merely talk about this problem, state lawmakers have the ability to fix Washington, DC, by forcing Congress to adopt an amendment mandating a balanced budget. This would help restore state legislatures' role as masters of the federal beast, putting people and the states back in charge of public servants in the national government.*"

He says, "Congressional leaders have flirted with balanced budget amendments since 1936, but they have never succeeded, or even come close, to actually passing such a requirement using the normal top-down method. But where the federal government has failed, state lawmakers have taken control in recent years, with many states choosing to pass legislation calling for an Article

V convention.” Read Hathaway’s article HERE.

During January The Hill carried an op-ed by Jenny Beth Martin, chairman of Tea Party Patriots Citizens Fund, entitled “A 2018 agenda for President Trump”.

Ms. Martin offered seven suggestions. One of which was, “enact a balanced budget amendment: For too long, the federal government has had a spending problem.... It's time to finally put some restraint on politicians in Washington, D.C., by using the bully pulpit of the presidency to get Americans on board with forcing Washington to live within its means, just as the rest of the country must.” Read her op-ed HERE.

Candidates for Federal Offices Promise Support for a BBA –

Many campaigns for the 2018 elections are well underway. Here are some examples of how increasing public support for a BBA and a term limits amendment are impacting positions taken by candidates for federal offices.

South Carolina Congressman Joe Wilson says “We must protect our children's future by reining in Washington's out of control spending. I have consistently supported a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution...”

In announcing his candidacy for a Pennsylvania Congressional seat, Art

Halvorson said he supports “term limits on Congress, ... and the Balanced Budget Amendment...”

New Hampshire Congressional candidate Mark Hounsell has announced that he supports a balanced budget amendment, saying the birth of his granddaughter this past November opened his eyes “even further to the need to continue in our efforts to leave the world a better place.”

In announcing his candidacy for the US Senate from Nebraska, Todd Watson promised “to cut federal spending, (and) balance the budget.”

Todd McKinley announced his candidacy for Tennessee's First Congressional District by telling the local newspaper that “he is in favor of a balanced budget amendment...”

Minnesota State Rep. Jim Newberger is running for a seat in the US Senate. Newberger is very vocal in his support for a BBA and is demonstrating his support by trying to lead the Minnesota legislature to adopt a resolution calling for a BBA-focused Article V convention.

First Guldenschuh Article V Progress Report of 2018 –

The Article V Convention Legislative Progress Reports, produced regularly by Georgia attorney David Guldenschuh have resumed with the start of the 2018 state legislative season. His one-page reports quickly summarize the status of each active Article V campaign.

The February edition of Guldenschuh's Report was not ready at press time, but it will be posted at <http://articlevcaucus.com/progress-report-on-article-v-efforts/> by Tuesday, February 6.

A Comprehensive Review of Article V Efforts

One Month into 2018 Legislative Sessions –

Now that 2018 legislative sessions are underway, state legislators are beginning to file bills meant to lead to an Article V state-led convention to propose one or more Constitutional amendments. Thirty-four similar applications are required to trigger an amendment-proposing convention.

Balanced Budget Amendment Task Force (BBATF). This campaign, seeking to insert a federal fiscal responsibility provision into the US Constitution, currently has 28 states supporting its single-subject application. Here is their current activity:

Maine: HJR1251 was introduced on January 25 by Rep. Nathan Wadsworth, Rep. Norman Higgins and Rep. Steven Stanley as a bipartisan bill.

South Carolina: HCR3473 has Rep. Peter McCoy as primary sponsor has one additional co-sponsor. It was introduced in January 2017 and was referred to the House Judiciary Committee. SCR547, introduced in March 2017, has Senator Shane Massey as primary sponsor and 6 co-sponsors. Both bills are believed to be alive.

Virginia: SJR26 was filed on January 4 by Senator Emmett Hanger. It has been referred to the Rules Committee. SJR11, a similar measure, was offered on January 10 by Senator John Cosgrove.

Washington State: HJM4017 was introduced on January 19 by Rep. Cary Condotta and 5 co-sponsors. The bill has been referred to the State Government, Elections & Information Technology Committee.

BBATF also has efforts underway in Idaho, Kentucky, and Minnesota.

Convention of States Project (CoSP). So far 12 states have adopted the CoSP application for a convention to propose its recommended three-subject proposals. Here is their current activity:

Idaho: HCR32 was introduced on January 26 by the House of Delegates State Affairs Committee. This bill varies from other currently adopted CoSP measures in that it does not support a term limits element. The bill is currently pending in the House Judiciary, Rules & Administration Committee.

Iowa: HJR12, SJR8, and SSB1110 were all introduced in March 2017 by the House of Delegates and Senate Judiciary Committees. HJR12 was approved in the House by a vote of 58 to 38 last March. SJR8 was voted out of a sub-committee on January 24. These bills all vary from other currently adopted CoSP measures in that they do not support a term limits element.

Illinois: HR110 was introduced in February 2017 with Rep. Robert Martwick as the primary sponsor, along with 6 co-sponsors. It was referred to the Rules Committee.

Kentucky: HJR81 is sponsored by Rep. Regina Huff. Introduced January 19, it has been referred to the House Elections, Const. Amendments & Intergovernmental Affairs Committee.

Maine: HJR1232 was introduced on January 16 by Rep. Nathan Wadsworth and Rep. Stephen Stanley as a bipartisan bill. It has been referred to the Committee on State and Local Government. A hearing is scheduled for February 7.

Maryland: SJR8 was introduced on January 25 and received a first reading before the Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee. Senator Gail Bates is the primary sponsor, and there are 13 co-sponsors.

Michigan: HJRV was introduced in September 2017 with Rep. Lee Chatfield as the primary sponsor. It has 17 co-sponsors and has been referred to the Committee on Government Operations.

Minnesota: HB2690 with Rep. Duane Quam as primary sponsor has 11 co-sponsors. It was introduced in May 2017 and has carried over. It is currently in the Government Operations and Elections Policy Committee.

Nebraska: LR6 was introduced in January 2017 with 12 sponsors, including Senator Steve Halloran. A co-sponsor was added on January 16, 2018.

New Hampshire: HCR10 with Rep. Scott Wallace as prime sponsor and Rep. Marc Abear as co-sponsor was introduced on January 3. It has been referred to the House State-Federal Relations and Veterans Affairs Committee.

New Jersey: SCR28 was introduced on January 9 by Senators Joseph Pennacchio, Michael Doherty and 4 co-sponsors. ACR73 is the House version of this bill with 3 sponsors and 6 co-sponsors.

Ohio: SJR1 was introduced in 2017 by Senator Matt Huffman and 3 co-sponsors. It was referred to the Government Oversight and Reform Committee and appears to still be active. HJR2 is a companion House bill introduced by Rep. Christina Hagen, Rep. Bill Patmon and 12 co-sponsors.

South Carolina: SJR878 with Senator Shane Massey as primary sponsor has 11 co-sponsors. It was introduced on January 9 and was referred to the Senate Judiciary Affairs Committee. A similar bill, SCR86, was introduced in January 2017 with Senator Lawrence Grooms as sponsor and 12 co-sponsors. That bill appears to still be alive, but inactive. A related bill, HJR3233, was also introduced in 2017 and still appears to be alive. It shows Rep. Bill Taylor as primary sponsor and has 32 co-sponsors.

South Dakota: SJR3 was introduced on January 22 with Senator Richard Curd and 22 co-sponsors. It has been referred to the Senate State Affairs Committee.

Washington State: HJR4006 with Rep. Jesse Young as primary sponsor has 14 co-sponsors. Introduced on January 8, the bill has been referred to the House State Government Committee. Companion measure SJM8003 was introduced on January 19. It has been referred to the Senate State Government, Tribal Relations & Elections Committee.

CoSP reports that it now has 3.1 million citizen supporters. The group also has efforts underway in Virginia.

Compact for America (CfA). CfA has a single-subject proposed Constitutional amendment: a BBA. Its approach varies from the above two campaigns in that it involves a formal compact between states to support a specifically-worded proposed amendment. Five states have signed onto the compact.

Just before deadline Chip DeMoss, CEO of the CfA effort sent the following information. "Our prime focus is on working with the Administration to hold a White House Summit on the role of the states in bringing fiscal responsibility to DC. We would bring key state legislative leaders and strategic partners to the event. We have had two key meetings already with Administration officials and have received a good reception. We have outlined some next steps and are awaiting further response. All of this is designed to ultimately allow for the passage of the Compact activating resolution in Congress. Passage would be a big incentive to the states to get the job done."

"We are working in six legislatures currently on passage of the Compact bill. The current approach is for the Compact Commissioners to deal directly with legislative leadership. That approach appears to be working for now. The Commissioners have requested that we keep these states confidential for the time being until the bills have been filed."

US Term Limits (USTL). Two states (Florida and Alabama [see below]) have adopted resolutions supporting the single-subject objective of this group: term limits for members of Congress. This organization has finally started to move forward. Here is where they are currently active:

Alabama: HJR23 was introduced on January 9 with Rep. Kerry Rich with 31 co-sponsors. A couple days later the Alabama House unanimously (both Republicans and Democrats) approved the measure. On January 25 the Alabama Senate concurred, formally adopting this Article V application.

Arizona: HCR2024 was introduced on January 25 by Rep. Darin Mitchell and 6 co-sponsors as a bipartisan bill.

Georgia: SR195 was introduced during March 2017 with 6 prime sponsors and 8 co-sponsors. Shortly after introduction the Senate approved the measure by a vote of 31 to 19. It is currently pending in the House Rules Committee. The companion House measure, HR217 also has 6 prime sponsors, but also languishes in the House Rules Committee.

New Hampshire: HCR12 was introduced on November 3, 2017 by Rep. Scott Wallace with 3 co-sponsors. It has been referred to the House State-Federal Relations and Veterans Affairs Committee.

South Carolina: HCR3567 with Rep. Eric Bedingfield as primary sponsor has 6 co-sponsors. The bill was introduced in February 2017. SCR545 with 2 sponsors was introduced in March 2017. Both bills were referred to their respective Judicial Committees, and both bills appear to be alive.

USTL is also currently active in Alaska, Colorado, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and Utah.

Campaign Finance-related Article V Measures – Early-on these efforts were spearheaded by a group calling itself Wolf-PAC. It is no longer clear who is leading this growing campaign which generally seeks a Constitutional amendment principally aimed at overturning the Supreme Court's Citizens United decision. Here are the current states considering resolutions on the same general topic:

Iowa: SJR5 was introduced in February 2017 by Senator Joseph Bolckcom and one co-sponsor. SJR8, similar to SJR5, was introduced on January 9 showing the Senate State Government Committee as the sponsor. HJR8 was also introduced in February 2017 by Rep. Liz Bennett and 6 co-sponsors. Both bills appear to still be alive. These bills deal with proposing Campaign Finance Reform. A related bill, HJR12 was introduced in April 2017 showing the House of Delegates Judiciary Committee as the sponsor.

Maine: SJR667 was introduced on January 16 by two Senators and two Reps. The bill applies for an Article V convention to propose an amendment "to restore free and fair elections".

Maryland: SJR7 was introduced on January 24 with Senator Paul Pinsky as the primary sponsor, along with 24 co-sponsors. Calling for a "Democracy Amendment", this Article V application is similar to several others which seek to overturn the Supreme Court's Citizens United decision. The measure has been assigned to the Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee.

Nebraska: LR268 with Senator Bob Krist as primary sponsor was introduced in January 2017. It had its first reading on January 4, 2018, with a hearing scheduled for January 24, 2018. The resolution would call for an Article V convention to deal with "fair and free elections". The resolution seeks to be considered along with resolutions from other states that generally seek to overturn the Supreme Court's Citizens United decision.

New York: SB3317 was introduced on January 3 with 10 Senate sponsors. AB5109 is a similar bill introduced in the House on the same date with 35 sponsors. The bills are proposed Acts rather than Resolutions, but they call on Congress to "to call a national constitutional convention to propose amendments in order to address concerns raised by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission".

South Carolina: HCR4174 (with a single sponsor) and SCR571 (with 2 sponsors) were introduced in 2017. Both bills appear to still be alive. These bills deal with proposing Campaign Finance Reform.

Washington State: On January 9, 2017 SJM8000 was introduced with Senator Dean Takko as primary sponsor, supported by 14 co-sponsors. Although the "Whereas" clauses talk about the need for campaign finance reform, as written this is essentially an application for an "open" Article V convention. The bill appears to be alive, residing in the Senate State Government, Tribal Relations & Elections Committee. A more recent version of this measure, HJM4003, was introduced in January 2018 with Rep. Jessyn Farrell as primary sponsor and 23 co-sponsors.

Similar efforts are known to be underway in Hawaii, New Jersey, and Virginia.

Article V Convention Delegate-related Bills – At the September 2017 Arizona Article V Planning Convention delegates voted to encourage all state legislatures "to enact delegate selection legislation at the earliest opportunity". These are states currently considering such actions:

Nebraska: LB1058 is billed as a "Faithful Delegate to Federal Article V Convention Act". It was introduced on January 17 by Senator Steve Halloran as prime sponsor. The bill has 15 co-sponsors. It has been referred to Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee.

New Hampshire: HB1268 was introduced on January 3 with Rep. Timothy Horrigan as primary sponsor. This bill establishes a procedure for the selection of delegates to an Article V convention. It is pending before the House Legislative Administration Committee.

Virginia: SJR31 was introduced on January 8 by Senator Mark Peake. Then companion measure HJR49 was introduced on January 19 with Delegate Mark Cole as primary sponsor. Both measures have 2 co-sponsors. This resolution establishes "procedures for selecting and replacing commissioners to represent the Virginia General Assembly at interstate conventions (including Article V conventions), for clarifying the scope of authority of commissioners and committees at such conventions, for enforcing limits on such authority, and for prescribing an oath to be taken by interstate convention commissioners."

An effort is also known to be underway to propose such legislation in Michigan.

Another Related Bill of Interest –

New Hampshire: HJR4 is not actually an application for an Article V convention. Rather, it is a resolution "urging Congress to apply laws equally to United States citizens and members of Congress", while urging sister states to hold an Article V convention for the same purpose. The measure has 10 sponsors and has been referred to the House State-Federal Relations and Veterans Affairs Committee.

Who Said It?

Ronald Reagan helped launch the state-led campaign for a BBA in the mid-1970s.

Since then, Washington has spent nearly $12 trillion on interest (over $100,000 per tax-payer), and borrowed nearly $18.5 trillion
(over $150,000 per tax-payer), costing each taxpayer over $250,000.

Each year we don't act, another $14,000

($10,200 borrowed, and $3,800 blown on interest) is added to each tax-payers burden.

New State Factor: The Number of Laws Criminalizing Innocent Conduct Are Too Much

Ronald J. Lampard | Criminal Justice

With the explosion in the number of criminal statutes and criminal regulations, it is particularly difficult for an individual to know what conduct has been deemed criminal or noncriminal. In addition, each year lawmakers at the federal, state and local levels pass criminal laws that do not prescribe a standard of culpability. This new report discusses the importance of mens rea reform and reducing overcriminalization, as well as exploring state policy trends on the issues.
